

Disclaimer

The information contained in this website is provided exclusively for information purposes about Erie Water Treatment and the services it provides.

Erie Water Treatment makes every reasonable effort to ensure that this information is correct at the time of publication, however there is always the possibility that the website may contain information that is incomplete, inaccurate or no longer up-to-date. Erie Water Treatment retains the right to supplement, change, correct or remove the information provided without notice at any time. Erie Water Treatment accepts no liability for your reliance on the information provided. Erie Water Treatment explicitly makes no representations of warranties of any kind about the information provided to the full extent allowed by law and under no circumstances can it be held liable for any direct harm or consequential damages. The copyright holder for all the information provided is Erie Water Treatment; consequently this information must not be reproduced or distributed without the express prior consent of Erie Water Treatment. By visiting this website you accept that the relationship between Erie Water Treatment and yourself is subject to Belgian law. All information or data provided to Erie Water Treatment by users of this website will be treated in confidence. This information will only be used to enable Erie Water Treatment to handle your queries and/or comments efficiently and to tailor our service. Under no circumstances will this information be disclosed to third parties without your prior consent.